

IgG4-related disease manifesting as pericarditis: A case report and Literature Review

Guillermo Quintero Vega¹, Daniel Osorio², Jose De la Hoz¹, Karen Galvis¹, Rafael Andrade¹, and Daniela Rodriguez¹

¹Fundacion Santa Fe de Bogota

²Universidad de los Andes

July 21, 2020

Abstract

IgG4-related disease (IgG4-RD) is a chronic inflammatory mediated by an immune response characterized by dense lymphoplasmacytic infiltrate, IgG4 positive plasmacytes in the affected tissue. In this case, we describe a patient who presented pericarditis with hemodynamic instability. Reporting of atypical presentations is necessary for broadening clinical recognition of similar cases.

Hosted file

Manuscript.doc available at <https://authorea.com/users/344921/articles/471274-igg4-related-disease-manifesting-as-pericarditis-a-case-report-and-literature-review>

