

Otologic Complications of Temporomandibular Joint Arthrocentesis due to Arteriovenous Fistula

Joseph Fanti<sup>1</sup>, Abhita Reddy<sup>1</sup>, Evan Greenbaum<sup>1</sup>, Mohammed Qaisi<sup>1</sup>, Biraj Shah<sup>1</sup>, and James A Murphy<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup>John H Stroger Hospital of Cook County

May 31, 2021

Abstract

Arteriovenous Fistula (AVF) is an exceedingly rare sequelae following arthrocentesis of the temporomandibular joint. This case report discusses a constellation of symptoms, findings, and appropriate management of a patient with a superficial temporal AVF. Several findings in this case, including vertigo, nystagmus, and hearing loss, have not been previously documented.

