

Ultrasonographic features of an cryoglobulinemia vasculitis:Case report and Literature review

Xing Wen¹ and Xiaorong Wen¹

¹Sichuan University West China Hospital

November 26, 2021

Abstract

Cryoglobulinemia vasculitis (CV) is a rare, small vascular occlusive disease caused by cryoglobulin precipitation in the plasma. We report the case of a 61-year-old female suffering from pain in the toes of the left foot in autumn, who subsequently developed acute pain, during hospitalization.

Hosted file

main-n1.pdf available at <https://authorea.com/users/448105/articles/546975-ultrasonographic-features-of-an-cryoglobulinemia-vasculitis-case-report-and-literature-review>

